I was thinking !!

Dear Fellow Traveller,

We Irish have a strange notion about being “humble”. We are generally slow to take credit and shy of praise. As we journey on in life we are sometimes challenged by how easy some people can do things while I must struggle on. We have the smart student in the class who always gets the top marks or the other one who is a natural on the football field or with any sport and then there is the one who is good at both. Comparing can hold you back.

It's not an uncommon trait, comparing ourselves to others. More often than not, we tend to find ways to pull back, afraid to try something new in case we might fail. We value the opinion of others and yet we don't like being the topic of conversation.

If this strikes a trait with you—then “Congrats” on being part of the human race ! We all feel this way at least during some times in our lives. Being human can be a lonely experience.

We are all challenged to discover our talents, our gifts and then to use them at every possible chance: .

Whether we need to - walk across the street

Reach across the table

Live in community

Learn a new language

Practice talking less and listening more

Pray and discern what God has in store

We will not be a generation who is lulled to sleep

By apathy and selfishness and complacency

We are the people who will be moved to action

To walk humbly and love mercy and do justice

We want God to send us out

To the coffee shops and the High Streets

To neighbourhoods and street corners

No matter where we go

When God sends us on mission

We will answer with our whole lives.

(Excerpt from Mission Prayer in Missalette).

“No one can make you feel inferior without your consent.” ~Eleanor Roosevelt

Have a wonder— full week
F.K..

Big Thank You to all who have dropped in Autumn Dues towards the upkeep of the parish this week. There are still some areas to whom we have not yet dropped in envelopes or The Verbum Apologies. We need a bit of extra help in some area and if you can help in this regard we would be grateful.

On-going work: Roof has been insulated and should make the building cosier. Lighting changed to LED - more eco friendly and cheaper. New Gas heating system not up and running yet. - Hopefully this week. Big Thanks to Frank Keane, our Parish Co-coordinator,, who “gets the job done”..!
